Proposals and Possibilities for Supportive and Preparatory Services for the Jones and Other Elementary Schools

August 26, 1964

Part of a motion approved by the Board of Education on August 12, 1964, the administration was directed to make a statement identifying and otherwise enumerating the needs and preparatory services which could be implemented for the 1964-65 school year with a focus on the Jones elementary school to the exclusion of all schools enrolling disadvantaged students. In line with concerns initially identified and expressed to the Board of Education followed by recommendations from two committees (Behavioral Problems and Racial In-Balance) viewed by the board and school administration in public sessions, the administration believes the following to be the recommendations to accomplish during the 1964-65 year:

The appointment of a Project Coordinator or Director.

The appointment of a Director of Research whose attention is heavily but not totally directed to the disadvantaged schools. (This appointment has been made.)

The involvement of qualified consultants for guidance in the development of programs and in the evaluation.

The development of a pre-school program designed to be complete by the second semester.

The involvement of groups, agencies, and professional schools who are prepared to render service and to train personnel for the specialized service needed.

The development of a program involving parents, teachers, administrators whereby roles would be identified so as to bring about effective understanding of existing situations and relevant to resolving the problems associated with the disadvantaged. In such a program all resources capable of making an important contribution would be involved.

Establish special study committees to investigate the effectiveness, appropriateness of instructional tools and materials, curricular activities, the curriculum, guidance and counseling, staffing, school attendance boundaries, and other aspects of operation whereby the disadvantaged can be served more effectively.
