[1] Your work: cited more...

A footnoted postcard?!

Yes. It cites the 2005 IEEE study of 1,307,038 articles showing that articles in systems like Deep Blue...

“...have consistently more citations, the advantage being

25%-250%
[2] Safe forever (Preservation)...

Level 1: Highest
Well known formats w/open standards (e.g. TIFF); we will both preserve and migrate

Level 2: Limited
Well known, but not open, formats (e.g. Microsoft Word); we will preserve and, if we can, migrate

Level 3: As-is

[3] It's simple...

No, really. It is simple

The license, in less than 50 words:
It’s my work, and UM can distribute and preserve it via Deep Blue. Those are UM’s only rights, and they’re non-exclusive. I can distribute and preserve it too, and more besides, because the work’s still mine; if I used somebody else’s work in it, I got the necessary permissions.
